1. What is the whistleblowing

The term 'whistleblower' refers to an employee or collaborator of an administration or a company or even other persons (e.g. employee of a supplier, shareholders, partners, etc.), who reports violations of national or European Union regulations that harm the public interest or the integrity of the public administration or private entity, which have come to their attention in a work context. Reporting ("whistleblowing"), in the intentions of the legislator is a manifestation of civic sense through which the whistleblower contributes to the emergence and prevention of risks and situations prejudicial to the body to which he or she belongs¹.

Disclosures or whistleblowing may be of various kinds: violation of a law or regulation, threat to a public interest as in the case of corruption and fraud, serious and specific situations of danger to public health and safety, etc.

The primary purpose of the report is therefore to bring to the attention of the persons identified the possible risks of irregularities that have come to their attention.

Whistleblowing is therefore an important instrument of prevention.

The justification for whistleblowing can therefore generally be found in the possible increased control of corruption and abuse of power and can contribute to promoting responsibility and ethics in organisations and society or entities.

Within this framework, the issue of the protection of the whistleblower, on the one hand, and the verification of the truth of the information, on the other hand, arises.

Therefore, a balance is needed between protecting whistleblowers and safeguarding companies or entities from misuse of the tool, in order to minimise the risk of reputational damage.

In any case, it is necessary that the whistleblower and any other persons involved in various ways, pending the handling of the case, be guaranteed the utmost confidentiality and protection of their personal data.

It is equally indispensable for the structure to set up an organisational system and procedures that can guarantee compliance with the provisions of the legislation, or to update the existing ones.

2. Legislation – In general

The matter, which since 2012 was already regulated in the public sector for administrations and equivalent bodies (Art. 54 bis Legislative Decree 165/2001 on public employment) was further regulated, also for the private sector, by Law 179/2017, in force since 29 December 2017.

However, for the private sector, the protection of whistleblowing was limited to entities that had adopted the organizational model pursuant to Legislative Decree 231/2001.

With an amendment to Article 6 of Legislative Decree no. 231/2001. 231/2001, in fact, it was established that the organizational models would have to provide for apical persons (persons who 'hold functions of representation, administration or management of the entity or of one of its organizational units with financial and functional autonomy', or who exercise, even de facto, the management and control of the same) and subordinates (persons subject to the management or supervision of the apical persons) to submit, in order to protect the integrity of the entity, 'circumstantiated reports of unlawful conduct' relevant under the legislation pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001 cited above, 'based on the fact that the reports are based on the fact that the entity has not been subject to the management or supervision of the apical persons'. 231/2001 cited above, "based on precise and concordant factual elements", or "of violations of the organization and management model of the entity" of which they have become aware by reason of the functions performed.

In addition, the models had to provide for internal reporting channels, the prohibition of retaliation and the disciplinary system.

Since the aforementioned legislation referred exclusively to the unlawful conduct relevant to the predicate offences, offences that were not covered by the provisions of Legislative Decree No. 231 were excluded from the regulation.

Legislative Decree No. 24 of 10 March 2023 transposes in Italy Directive (EU) 2019/1937 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 October 2019 on the protection of persons who report breaches of Union law.

The legislation includes many novelties in the provision of obliged parties, the definition of whistleblowers, the protections and the reporting modalities.

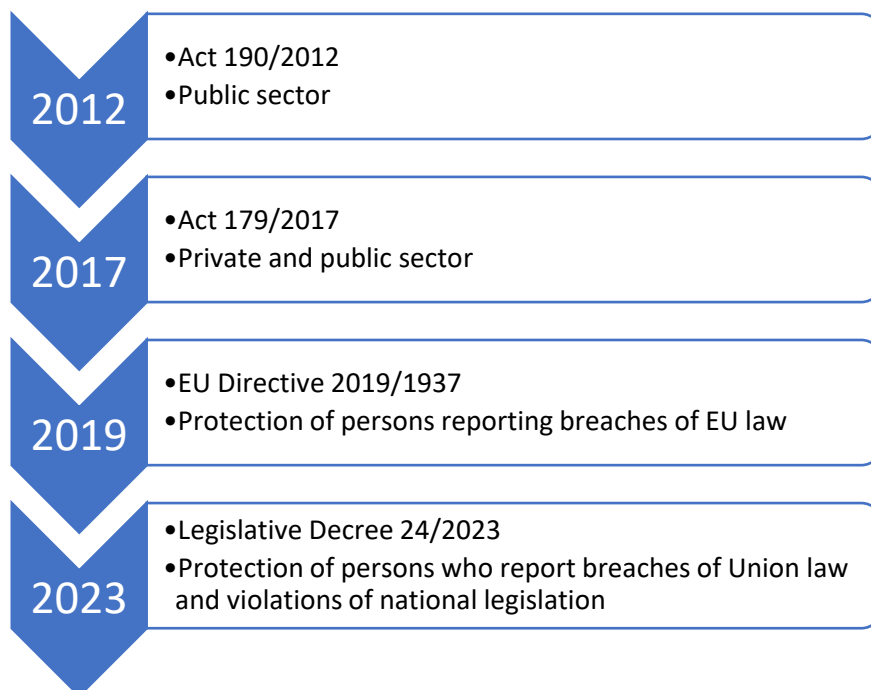

The scope of subjects has been extended (also for companies and entities with at least 50 employees and not only for public bodies and entities that have adopted a 231 model)

Those who adopt an organizational model are required to comply with the procedure even if they have fewer than 50 employees, by supplementing the model.

Main changes, as mentioned:

- the extension of the range of recipients of the obligations;
- the extension of the subjects who may report offences (in addition to employees, also collaborators, trainees, volunteers, self-employed workers, contractors and suppliers)
- the extension of potentially unlawful conduct deemed worthy of reporting;
- the integration of the classic reporting channel (internal to the entities) with an external reporting channel entrusted to the Anti-Corruption Authority (ANAC);
- strengthening the protection of whistleblowers with rules and guarantees to prevent them from being discouraged from reporting for fear of the consequences or from being penalized if they have reported violations

Outline of successive legal provisions

6. Purpose of the document

The purpose of this section of the model is to protect individuals (whistleblowers) who, having become aware of unlawful conduct by reason of their working environment, allow them to exercise their right recognised by European and internal provisions, while guaranteeing the confidentiality of their identity and the protection of the personal data provided.

The objective pursued is to provide such persons with the tools so that they are put in a position to independently proceed to report offences of which they have become aware by reason of their relationship with the entity. And in any case in the aforementioned work context.

In addition, as required by Legislative Decree 24/2023, specific sanctions must be provided for in order to ensure the proper implementation of the procedure, within the framework of the model.

Therefore, the section provides, again in relation to the provisions of the aforementioned Legislative Decree no. 24/2023, operational indications on how to identify the internal channel, proceed with the report, then information on the subject, contents, addressees, methods and documents to be used for the transmission of reports, as well as the forms of protection afforded to the reporter and other persons by our system.

The adoption of this supplement to the Model is intended to:

- clarify the principles underlying the institution of whistleblowing;
- define the scope of the context;
- define the internal whistleblowing channel
- specify the procedures for handling whistleblowing, through a well-defined procedural process;
- authorize one or more persons to handle whistleblowing reports, in compliance with the obligations of confidentiality and protection of personal data
- define a training course for such persons
- represent the procedures adopted by the company/body to protect the confidentiality of the identity of the person making the report, the content of the report and the identity of any other persons involved in the process
- define the requirements for the protection of personal data provided under the procedure
- define the arrangements for general information on the procedure adopted
- regulate any sanctions applicable in the event of violation of the provisions.

This procedure takes into account the ANAC Guidelines, issued pursuant to Article 10 of Legislative Decree 24/2023.

7. Context analysis

This document applies to the reporting of violations, as defined above, within the work context.

The company/entity

- has at least 50 employees and has adopted the organizational model 231

In this case, the violations are understood to refer to the violations provided for in Legislative Decree 24/2023 (see definitions) including those relating to the organizational model. Violations relating to the organizational model, however, should only be reported through internal channels.

Note: for the purposes of calculating the average number of employees, reference was made to the average number of employees (INPS data processing) as at 31/12 of the calendar year preceding the current one, as contained in the Chamber of Commerce's records (see ANAC Guidelines).

8. Scope of reporting

As provided for in the legislation, the procedures will apply first of all to reports of offences falling within the predicate offences of Legislative Decree No. 231/2001.

In addition, it covers any further violations, if not excluded, provided for by the aforementioned legislation (see section 5 above: Definitions).

The procedure does not apply, inter alia, to disputes or reports concerning individual working relationships, or concerning relations with one's superiors (Art. 1 of Legislative Decree 24/2023), therefore, purely by way of example, it does not cover issues concerning the operation of working relations, e.g. non-payment, recognition of levels, company organization, working hours, etc.

Criminal law and trade union protections remain unaffected.

Reports of violations are also excluded

- that do not harm the public interest
- outside the work context, as defined above.

In essence, irregularities in the management or organization of the activity (without prejudice to the implementation of the organizational model) are no longer included among reportable violations.

9. Defining the internal reporting channel

Suedwolle Group Italia SpA, part of the Suedwolle Group takes its responsibilities very seriously, particularly with regard to human rights and environmental aspects. In order to implement the Whistleblower Protection Act, the company has implemented the following measures as part of the whistleblowing procedure.

Employees, suppliers, representatives, and subcontractors (hereinafter jointly referred to as "business partners") may report violations of the Suedwolle Group Code of Conduct at compliance@suedwollgroup.com.

All of our business partners will be informed of the wrongdoing reporting procedure and its confidential nature. In addition to the above contact option, Suedwolle Group and consequently Suedwolle Group Italia SpA has appointed an external manager for the handling of wrongful reports.

The office can be reached as follows:

- via telephone: 49 89 55066-525

Baker Tilly Rechtsanwaltsgesellschaft mbH

All reports to the Office are covered by current legislation regarding confidentiality and anonymity of the reporter (identity is not disclosed).

Reports concern any illegal behavior that has a business connection to the Suedwolle Group or does not comply with internal company guidelines. However, this must not include allegations against the judgment. In case of doubt, the Office named above is available to discuss what falls within the scope of the report.

The German external manager is bound by client confidentiality, thus ensuring that anonymous reports can be made. In addition, the group-wide goal is to minimize the different reporting channels for the Suedwolle Group's European subsidiaries through an external manager-lawyer

The following additional methods are also provided:

- oral communication (including voice messaging) by contacting the following telephone number: 49 89 55066-525

- at the request of the reporting person, by means of a face-to-face meeting with the person authorized to handle reports, set within a reasonable period of time

The main security measures, which guard the channel are shown in Annex 1. These measures ensure the confidentiality of the identity of the reporting person, the person involved and the person otherwise mentioned in the report, as well as the content of the report and related documentation.

As required by legislation (Article 4 of Legislative Decree 24/2023), the most nationally representative trade unions were heard before activation. This fulfillment took place in the following ways:

10. Whistleblowing process

10.1. Content of the report

The whistleblower must provide all useful elements so that the recipient(s) can proceed with the checks and investigations to ascertain whether the facts reported are well-founded. It is therefore necessary for the report to be as circumstantial as possible in order to enable the persons responsible for receiving and handling reports to deliberate on the facts.

By way of example and guidance only, and without any obligation to use it, a form is made available, which contains the necessary information (Annex 3).

In particular, the information required is as follows:

- description of the unlawful conduct
- identity of the person making the report, with an indication of the qualification/function/role performed
- clear and complete description of the facts being reported
- if known, the circumstances of time and place in which the facts were committed
- if known, the particulars or other elements that would make it possible to identify the person who carried out the reported facts
- any further persons who may report on the facts that are the subject of the report
- any further documents that may confirm the validity of such facts
- any further information that may provide useful feedback on the existence of the reported facts

Where a report is submitted in written form and not in computerized form, it is advisable for the person concerned to clearly indicate in the subject line of the report that it is a report falling within the scope of the rules in question (e.g. by indicating on the envelope or in the subject line "Whistleblowing").

10.2 Subject of the report

The subject of the report is the unlawful conduct of which the whistleblower has become aware in the context of his/her work, as specified in the Definitions (para. 2).

These must therefore be facts resulting from elements that are in some way verifiable. Reports based on mere suspicions or rumours are not taken into account.

The unlawful conduct that is the subject of reports deserving of protection includes not only the entire range of predicate offences under Legislative Decree No. 231/2001, but also unlawful conduct that may have an impact on the business, regardless of its criminal relevance, and therefore highlights a malfunctioning of the business activities within the organizational model.

10.3. Report Management

It is considered that the person within the company or entity who can best take on the functions of managing reports is

Baker Tilly Rechtsanwalts-gesellschaft mbH

80335 München

E-Mail: ombudsservice.swg@bakertilly.de

The managing entity shall be expressly trained on the contents of the legislation and the procedures required for its management and reporting.

The entity shall provide generalized information on the channel activated and on the relevant procedures.

Internal reports submitted to a person other than the one indicated shall be forwarded, within seven days of receipt, to the competent person, with simultaneous notification of transmission to the reporting person.

As part of the management of the internal reporting channel, the external person or entity entrusted with the management of the channel shall perform the following activities:

- (a) issue the reporting person with an acknowledgement of receipt of the report within seven days from the date of receipt. This notice will preferably be sent to the address indicated by the reporting person in the report
- (b) maintain contact with the person who issued the alert and may ask the latter for additional information if necessary
- (c) diligently follow up the reports received
- (d) acknowledge the report within three months from the date of the acknowledgement of receipt or, in the absence of such an acknowledgement, within three months from the expiry of the period of seven days from the submission of the report; acknowledgement must also be given if the report is not followed up or if the report is closed
- (e) make available clear information on the channel, procedures and prerequisites for making internal reports, and on the channel, procedures and prerequisites for making external reports.

The information shall be displayed and made easily visible in the workplace, as well as accessible to persons who, although not frequenting the workplace, have a legal relationship relevant for the purposes of the legislation (e.g. e-mail communications).

Information on the channel and management is also included in a dedicated section of the aforementioned site.

10.4 Anonymous reports

Reports from which the identity of the reporter cannot be established are considered anonymous.

Where anonymous reports are received through internal channels, they shall be treated as ordinary reports to be dealt with in accordance with the criteria set out in this procedure, to the extent applicable, provided that the reports are substantiated.

In the case of anonymous reports, reports to judicial or accounting authorities or public disclosures, if the reporting person is subsequently identified and retaliated against, the protection measures for retaliation apply.

10.5 Checking the merits of the report

The manager is entrusted with the task of carrying out a full assessment of the merits of the circumstances represented by the whistleblower in the report in compliance with the principles of impartiality and confidentiality.

Once the admissibility of the report has been assessed, as whistleblowing, the persons entrusted with the management of the whistleblowing channel initiate the internal investigation of the facts or conduct reported in order to assess the existence thereof.

The person concerned may, or at his request, must be heard, possibly also by submitting written observations and documents.

Upon completion of the investigation, they shall provide feedback on the report within the prescribed time limits, giving an account of the measures planned or taken or to be taken to follow up the report and the reasons for the choice made.

Acknowledgement shall also be provided in the following cases

- non-existence of the prerequisites
- manifest groundlessness due to the absence of factual elements capable of justifying investigation
- ascertained generic content of the report of offence such as not to allow comprehension of the facts, or report of offence accompanied by inappropriate or irrelevant documentation.

Where the report is not adequately substantiated, the manager may request additional information from the whistleblower through the dedicated channel, or even in person, if the whistleblower has requested a direct meeting. The request for supplementary information suspends the deadline for reply until the production or communication of what has been requested or until the deadline has expired.

10.6 Protection of whistleblower

The identity of the whistleblower is protected both at the stage of acquiring the report and in any context subsequent to the report, except in cases where the identity must be revealed by law (e.g. criminal, tax or administrative investigations, inspections by control bodies, etc.).

If the dispute is based, in whole or in part, on the report and knowledge of the reporter's identity is indispensable for the accused's defense, the report may only be used if the reporter has expressly consented to the disclosure of his identity. In this case, the necessary consent will be sought and obtained.

All persons receiving or involved in the handling of the report are required to protect the confidentiality of the identity of the reporter.

The identity of the persons involved and of the persons mentioned in the report is protected until the conclusion of the proceedings initiated on account of the report, subject to the same guarantees provided for in favour of the reporter. For the principle of minimization, the data of persons not related to the report will be deleted.

No form of retaliation or discriminatory measure is allowed or tolerated against the person making a report (or other protected persons: e.g. facilitator, family members, etc.), and the protective measures set out in Articles 16/20 of Legislative Decree 24/2023 apply.

The protections are granted if the whistleblower, at the time of the report, the report to the judicial or accounting authorities or the public disclosure, had reasonable grounds to believe that the information on the breaches was true and fell within the objective scope of the legislation. In addition, the reports and disclosures must have been made in accordance with the procedure for using the various channels.

The protective measures consist of the

- prohibition of retaliatory acts, which include, but are not limited to, dismissal, demotion, transfer of location and any other action that entails negative effects on labor contracts, as well as a range of other "punitive" conduct, such as requiring submission to medical or psychiatric examinations,
- prohibition of discriminatory actions from which economic or financial prejudice results, including in terms of loss of income or opportunity.

the reporting or whistleblowing person, in order for these to be considered retaliation and, consequently, for the person to benefit from protection.

Protection measures do not apply when the criminal liability of the reporting person for the crimes of defamation or slander, or his civil liability, for the same title, in cases of malicious intent or gross negligence, is established, even by a judgment of first instance. In such cases, a disciplinary sanction is imposed (see below).

10.7. Privacy Protection

The personal data collected in the reporting process will be processed in compliance with current legislation (U.U. Regulation 679/2016 and Legislative Decree 196/2003).

In particular, the principles to which the company or entity adheres and which are the subject of specific training for authorized individuals are as follows:

- a. To process data in a lawful, correct and transparent manner with respect to the data subjects ("lawfulness, correctness and transparency").
- b. Collect data only for the purpose of handling and following up on reports, public disclosures or complaints made by subjects protected by Legislative Decree 24/2023 ("purpose limitation").
- c. Ensuring that data are adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed ("data minimization"). Personal data that are manifestly not useful for the processing of a specific report shall not be collected or, if accidentally collected, shall be deleted without delay.
- d. Ensure that the data is accurate and, if necessary, up-to-date; all reasonable steps must be taken to promptly delete or rectify inaccurate data related to the specific report, public disclosure, or complaint being handled ("accuracy").
- e. Retain data in a form that allows the identification of data subjects for as long as necessary to process the specific report, but no longer than five years from the date of notification of the final outcome of the reporting process ("retention limitation").
- f. Conduct processing in a manner that ensures adequate security of personal data, including protection, through appropriate technical and organizational measures, from unauthorized or unlawful processing and accidental loss, destruction or damage ("integrity and confidentiality"). In the context under review, which is characterized by high risks to the rights and freedoms of data subjects, the use of encryption tools within internal channels is, as a rule, to be considered an appropriate measure to implement, by design and by default, the aforementioned principle of integrity and confidentiality. The security measures adopted must, however, be periodically reviewed and updated.
- g. Establish a reporting management model in accordance with the principles of personal data protection. In particular, such measures must ensure that personal data are not made accessible automatically without the intermediary of the data controller or authorized person to an indefinite number of individuals.
- h. Undertake, at the design stage of the reporting channel and thus before processing begins, a data protection impact assessment in cases where the processing of reports may pose a high risk to the rights and freedoms of individuals.

In relation to the above, the Data Controller, with reference to this procedure

- verified that reporting data is accessible only to authorized parties through Group and Bakertilly
 - has specifically authorized the person(s) in charge of handling the reports (Annex 6 and Annex 6a)
 - will then be provided to the reporter at the time of the report with a specific disclosure (possibly in summary form with referral to other modes of consultation for further details), regarding the processing of the data (an indicative template of this disclosure is attached Attachment 7)
 - has carried out the impact assessment (DPIA), which is attached to this procedure (Annex 8)
 - has appointed, if necessary, a data controller in accordance with Article 38 of the EU Regulation 2016/679 after assessment (Annex 9)
 - has updated the processing register (Annex 10)

- the reporter has reasonable grounds to believe that the violation may pose an imminent or obvious danger to the public interest

- has well-founded reason to believe that the external report may carry the risk of retaliation or may not be effectively followed up because of the specific circumstances of the particular case, such as those in which evidence may be concealed or destroyed or where there is a well-founded fear that the recipient of the report may be colluding with or involved in the violator

Mode: through the press or electronic media or means of dissemination capable of reaching a large number of people.

3) Reporting to the judicial or accounting authority.

Note: Under the provisions under comment.

- As a priority favored the use of the internal channel
